

DELAWARE BIRD RECORDS COMMITTEE - SUMMARY OF COMPLETED REVIEWS

September 2018

The following is a summary of all of the rare bird records that have been reviewed by the Delaware Bird Records Committee (DBRC) since it was reorganized in 1995. Included are records of birds no longer on the Delaware Review List - they are signified by bold black species names. Review species are identified by bold red type.

Individual records in black type were accepted and the records in blue type were not accepted by the Committee.

New specimen records are reviewed by the committee but historical specimens were only verified in cases in which the specimens are the only source of proof that the species was ever present in Delaware. Subspecies of common species that have been reviewed are listed under the subspecies common name and Latin name and recorded in the taxonomic sequence for the species.

Archival documentation are reports put together based on the historical record; data for these reports was typically obtained from the files maintained at the Delaware Museum of Natural History where the DBRC files are also stored.

If you are interested in more details on any of these records, contact:
